Such an exhibition of pluck is deserving of all Brisbane pneumatic tube between the Capitol and Government Printing Office has been resumed, and the inventor, Mr. Ribbane riskes that he will have it com-Brisbane, states that he will have it completed during the appreaching summer.

The work was discontinued on account of the tube flattening in some places where it was buried deep below the surface on account of the great pressure of the earth it was buried to be completed by the surface of a lousehold duties is esteemed an accompany of the great pressure of the earth in the surface of the sur account of the great pressure of the earth upon it, thus preventing the passage of the sphere containing the packages for transportation. The plan now is to encase the tube, where it has to be buried so deep, in a brick arch, especially in the Capitol square, and at noints where Capitol square, and at points where streets cross it. The material of the tube Capitol square, and at points where streets cross it. The material of the tube will also be much stouter, and it will be strengthened in every particular. Mr. Brisbane has consulted a number of prominent engineers as to its construction, whose suggestions he has accepted, and he has no doubt it will work perfectly. Since the campaign of last year, the pretense of a Democratic party with Demoratic principles does not exist. The form of the party is silbert up, and in some places has been encouraged to become agressive by mistakes of the Republicans; but as a national party it cannot unite upon one principle or one line of policy. For that matter it may be difficult to define any principle that distinctly divides the parties in this country. The Republican party has as carnest Free Traders, as ataunch defenders of State rights, as determined foce of centralization as the the Democratic party, while it has also powerful elements just the reverse of these. What shall be the issue of the coming campaign is pocket, that he had left the door key on a nail over his bench, and having a habit of taking to himself, spoke of the fact, whereupon his dog, who was at his heels, turned and suddenly disappeared in the direction of the shop. The gentleman's curiosity was aroused, and so he sat down on the door stone and waited with papears that Rover went directly to his master's bench, jumped upon it, smelled of several right one and returned to his master, and appeared greatly pleased and apparently as anxious for praise as a boy would have been.

It hat he had left the door key on the salking to himself, spoke of the fact, whereupon his dog, who was at his heels, turned and suddenly disappeared in the taking to himself, spoke of the Republicans; that he had left the door key on heading to himself, spoke of the Religing to himself, spoke of the Religing to himself, spoke of the Relpublicans, whereupon his dog, who was at his heels coming campaign? is the leading question now. If it shall be Free Trade, or rehow. If it shall be Free Trade, or trenchment and opposition to all such dishonesty as the Credit Mobilier speculation and the back-salary theft, as some urge, the parties must be reorganized.—

PIRE CITY-ANOTHER NEW CITY. West Virginia is looking upwards and onwards and still brightening the star set onwards and still brightening the star set for her on the American ensign. Towns and cities are springing up all over her hills and valleys. The latest move in that direction is the laying out of Pike City, by Mr. Henry Pike, of New York, brother of the late S. N. Pike, of Opera House celebrity. The proposed town is situated at the mouth of Eighteen-mile Creek, on the Kanawha river, in the county of Putnam. Mr. Pike has bought some two thousand acres of mineral land in this county, which is full of iron. He is building tron furnaces at Pike City, and expects to have them in operation during the summer. Extracts from an Address Delivered by the President, Rev. Isaac Er-ret, Editor "Christian Standard," at Wooster, O., on the Twenty-first Anniversary of the Ohio Christian Missionary Society, May 20.

After giving a brief outline of the Sc ciety's history, its trials, failures and suc-cesses, and having referred to the onward step of the past year in raising twenty-three thousand dollars as an increased um with which to begin the work of its sum with which to begin the work of its majority, he said:

"It is not my province to speak of the men who were with us in the beginning, and who are no longer here. That task is assigned to another, and will be faithfully performed. But I may be allowed to say and to mark it as a cause for expecial gratitude, that the most of these who were here then are still living and most of the active workers who sustained. edon of this enterprise at the start ost of the active workers who sustained are still here, strong and active and hope It will not be so much longer.

The next grand reunion of the founders of this Society will not be held in Wooster, but in Paradise. Alexander Campbell, D. S. Burnet, Walter Scott, Adamson Bentley, William Hayden, and a few others have already gone. The rest of us will soon commit this work to younger hands, and follow them to the land of test. If through grace we are permitted to enter that rest, it fully comports with my best conceptions of that future life, that there will be a gathering in some of the sweet bowers of the garden of God, or under the spreading branches of the trees.

to talk of all their perils of the past, trace the loving providences that had led them through dark and stormy scenes, to receive a fuller report than any sceretary here can turnish of the results of their associated labors, and to rejoice together before God, that they had not run in vain, neither labored

in vain. I do not picture such a meeting as one of great exultation.

I rather think amid the incliable glories and felicities of that heavenly destiny and the clearer visions we shall then eujoy of the riches of grace, and the glories of our Redeemer, it may come as near to sadness as may be known in that blessed land, to reflect that we had been so cold of heart, had done so little, suffered so little, payed out so sarriegly, in response to the Irida. reflect that we had been so cold of heart, had done so little, suffered so little, payed out so sparingly, in response to the luminite Love that beamed on us in that mishing to the love that beamed on us in that mishing to the luminite Love that beamed on us in that mishing to the luminite that had been so of God. Out the adorable Son of God. Out the depost, purest joy will be, that we are there at all—that faith so staggering, love so feeble, services opeor, could be accepted before the throne of Justice, through the infinite mercy of God in Christ. And yet though this shade of pensiveness may subdue the exultation, it will after all be a great and holy joy that it was put into our hearts to render even a feeble service, and to spend life in honest endeavors to save the souls of the perishing. It will be a goodly company—the original workers and those who were reached through their co-operative work; and after they have talked together of the mutual experiences in the work of God, and testified of the grace that redeemed and sanctified them, and made them fruitful in works of righteousness; it will be an hour of mighty joy and very tender interest, when they go in company to be an hour of mighty joy and very tender be an hour of mighty joy and very tener interest, when they go in company to the presence of the King, singing sweet snatches of the old earth sougs by the way, to present their united acclamations of love and joy to Him through whose grace they had been rescued from sin and death, and inspired to labor for the salvation of others; I am glad to be here; "but what shall it be to be there?"
